EDITORIAL COMMENT

We would like to join the millions of South Africans in congratulating the Class of 2011 who passed matric. This is a major feat, especially our province, Mpumalanga, which has increased its pass rate by eight percent. This major achievement could not have been possible without the dedication of the educators, principals, parents and officials of the Department of Education.

We would like to send our condolences to all families who lost their lovely ones on the road during the festive season. We wish the injured a speedy recovery.

The late Regional Chief Director for the Department of Water Affairs (DWA), Mr Fanyana Mntambo will be solely missed. Working jointly with our department and our municipalities, he was instrumental in the quest to resolve the water crisis in Mpumalanga. Our department has resolved to support DWA in its effort to complete all water projects that Mr Mntambo initiated, in his honour. May his soul rest in peace!

On the same breath, we would like to pay homage to our departed colleagues, Ms Susan Vilane and Mr Petros 'PG' Ntuli for their dedication. Imbued with the spirit of service delivery, they showed up to work even when their conditions were deteriorating. Their effort to see the department succeeding in its mandate remains unquestionable. We will miss them.

We would like to thank officials in the Disaster Management Directorate for their efforts in supporting families who became vulnerable during the storm that destroyed several houses in the Nkomazi areas. Their crusade saw them sacrificing their time during the holidays to stand by in case of emergencies. We acknowledge their commitment as this has played a pivotal role in reducing the number of fatalities.

The department welcomes all newly appointed officials into its fold. As you hit the ground running, we hope that you will contribute meaningfully to the department's endeavour to support municipalities and the traditional leadership. We appeal to all officials to give our newly appointed officials the necessary support as we pull together towards the same goal.

MEC's FOREWORD

MEC MB MASUKU

Provision of water to our communities remains one of the major challenges in Mpumalanga. Inadequate funds to build a new infrastructure that will supply water to areas with no access, impedes our department to fulfil the mandate. Despite this, it is worth noting that we have developed a Water Master Plan that will be followed in dealing with the challenge. In some areas, we are sending water tankers to supply water as a temporary measure until a permanent infrastructure is built. In some areas we have already installed boreholes. We appeal to all our communities to be patient as we work on permanent solutions.

The completion of the Delmas Water Treatment Plant and its official hand over remains one of COGTA's milestone achievements in the third quarter. Considering a painful chapter in the lives of the Botleng community, who had to endure the monstrous water-borne diseases, its completion is victory for them. They can look forward to each day to drink clean water free from contamination. This noble effort between COGTA, the Department of Water Affairs and the Victor Khanye Local Municipality, has re-affirmed the ANC-led government as a caring government. Through the plant, we have moved a step towards the right direction in our effort to meet the United Nation's Millennium targets of reducing the number of people without access to clean water by 2014. Now that we have handed it over to the local municipality and the local community, we call upon the community to protect it jealously against vandalism.

We have committed ourselves to spare no effort in contributing to the job-creation programme. During our engagement with municipalities, this matter enjoys undivided attention. The recent Local Economic Development (LED) Summit in Hazyview presented us with a golden opportunity to explore job opportunities. The resolutions adopted at the end of the summit are a means to achieve this purpose. (See resolutions on Page 5).

A number of jobs have been created through the Community Works Programme (CWP) in Mpumalanga. Given the high number of unemployment which has subjected our people to poverty, we are working tirelessly to meet the set target of 237 000 job opportunities nationally by 2014. We are using the limited resources at our disposal to make this a reality. The additional funding of about R163 million announced by MEC for Finance, Ms Pinky Phosa during the adjustments, could not have come at a better time. It has boosted our financial muscle in the remaining period of the 2011/12 financial year to work towards meeting this target. Together with municipalities we are working towards achieving this goal.

We welcome the Provincial Treasury's additional funding to our department during the adjustments. The R164 million will be utilized prudently to support victims of disasters, municipalities on technical services, ICT Infrastructure and for the Expanded Public Works Incentive Programme.

As we tip-toe towards the end of the 2011/12 Financial year, I would like to appeal to all our stakeholders to continue to support our department in its endeavour to make the lives of our people better. I also appeal to our communities to work closely with the Ward Committees in search of solutions to the challenges facing them. We are mindful at all times, the commitment we have made to a collective determination to address with energy, the challenges of creating jobs, reducing poverty, building infrastructure and expanding our economy. We remain committed to turn municipalities to deliver quality services while at the same time providing traditional leaders with resources to improve the living standard of rural communities.

MESSAGE FROM THE OFFICE OF THE HOD

HOD DAVID MAHLOBO

Preliminary results show that most of our municipalities are well on their way to obtain unqualified reports and that those who obtained clean audits have repeated the feat in the 2010/11 Financial year. The department would like to congratulate the municipalities that have made such achievements and encourage those that are still struggling, to catch up, in view of Operation Clean Audit 2014. The department is working tirelessly to support all municipalities still struggling to produce the clean audits. The results of these audits are indicative of what the situation is in the municipalities in as far as financial management is concerned.

We congratulate the newly appointed Municipal Managers in the following municipalities;

- Thaba Chweu (Mr Durton Koma)
- Mkhondo (Mr Amborose Mahlangu)
- Chief Albert Luthuli (Mr Vusi Mpila)
- Nkomazi (Mr Dan Ngwenya)
- Thembisile Hani (Mr Jabulani Sindane).

We appeal to the internal and external stakeholders of the municipalities to support them. The department is spending sleepless nights in its endeavour to assist the outstanding municipalities to finalize the process of filling critical vacancies. The affected municipalities are reminded that the deadline for the appointments was September last year, and must move with speed to fill in the posts without any further delay, including the Section 57 Managers. In some of the municipalities the process is at the tail end, and the successful candidates will assume their duties very soon. The appointments will lubricate the local government machinery to work better in improving the poor financial management and service delivery that has been elusive for some time.

In cases where Municipal Councils have appointed Acting Municipal Managers, we appeal all officials, shop stewards, stakeholders and communities to support the incumbents for the purpose of service delivery. The stability of our municipalities is in the best interest of everybody.

Despite the financial constraints, government continues to invest millions of rands in the infrastructure. The construction of the Delmas Water Treatment Plant, in which more than R80 million was pumped in, is a perfect example. However, we have realized that the sustainability of such infrastructure depends entirely on the role played by communities to pay for services. These payments will help municipalities raise the revenue needed for the maintenance of the infrastructure. A number of people are obtaining services free, when in fact they should be paying for them. Failure to pay will lead to the collapse of the municipalities. MEC Madala Masuku, in his engagement with communities, has appealed to them to pay for the services, such as water, electricity, refuse removal, etc. He has appealed to municipalities to put systems in place that will help them collect revenue. We appeal to communities to pay for the services.

The Department of Public Enterprise and ESKOM, have launched a campaign to reduce consumption of electricity by 10 %. The consumption of energy in this country is reportedly high. Despite major efforts to extend electricity networks by ESKOM, however, the power utility has conceded that it will not be able to meet the challenges of producing more power, and therefore need the active support of the entire population to develop practical energy saving and energy efficiency habits. Let us all join the movement by switching off the power when not in use.

COGTA DELIVERS AN ADVANCED WATER TREATMENT PLANT TO THE BOTLENG COMMUNITY

ENGINEERED: The Delmas Water Treatment Plant is the first of its kind in Mpumalanga.

Christmas came early for Botleng residents in the Victor Khanye Local Municipality, when the Department of Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs (COGTA) handed over a completed water treatment plant. This marked the end of a chapter in which several people died as a result of water-borne diseases and the beginning of an era in which residents will now drink clean purified water. The construction of the Water Treatment Plant by COGTA, with a capacity of 15 Mega Litres of water, will help supply clean water to about 10 000 households.

The construction of the treatment plant is the results of a commitment by the government to bring to an end to the outbreak of water-borne diseases in that area. Speaking on behalf of the Premier, Nkangala District Executive Mayor, Cllr Speedy Mashilo told the community that the plant is a sign that government cares for the people of Botleng. "As government, we have never stopped to find solutions to challenges facing our people. The plant is a one step towards the right direction to supply clean water to our people," Cllr Mashilo said.

He appealed to the community to protect the plant against vandalism. He urged them to report vandals to the police. Not only has the construction of the plant brought relief to the water problem to that area. It also brought economic spin-offs, as Cllr Mashilo explained. "15 jobs were created during the construction phase, to help the employees to put food on the table," he added.

Head of Department, Mr David Mahlobo assured the community that the water plant will provide them with clean water, free of bacteria. "More than R80 million has been invested in this plant. The plant, which is the first of its kind in Mpumalanga, has an advanced technology system of cleaning water. It has oxidation (a process of combining chemicals and oxygen) to kill bacteria," Mr Mahlobo said.

A pipeline worth R174 million is to be built in the Bloemendal area, to increase the level of water supply required for the Delmas water treatment plant. According to Mr Mahlobo, the construction of the pipeline will be completed by March 2013.

The completion of the treatment plant and the announcement of the pipeline construction has been applauded by the Executive Mayor for the Victor Khanye Local Municipality, Cllr Ntombizodwa Makhabane. "This is a milestone achievement. We are happy that we will now get clean water", she told the applauding audience.

The official hand over of the plant was marked by the cutting of a ribbon and the opening of a plaque by Cllr Makhabane.

LAND MARK: Victor Khanye Mayor, Cllr Ntombizodwa Makhabane declares the Delmas Water Treatment Plant opened by opening a plaque.

COGTA HOSTS AN LED SUMMIT

ECONOMIC AUSTERITY MEASURES: MEC Masuku gives delegates a direction before the start of the summit.

Strengthening of partnerships, review of Local Economic Development Strategies and the promotion of co-operatives and emerging enterprises are some of the resolutions adopted during the recent Local Economic Development (LED) Summit held in Hazyview. The summit, hosted by the Department of Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs (COGTA) was attended by LED experts, Councillors and LED officials from municipalities. It took place at the time when the world looks for solutions in the wake of the global economic downturn, which has left some countries in debt crisis.

In his address, MEC for Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs, Mr Madala Masuku told delegates that the objective of the summit was to revive local economies. "LED Summit is meant to find ways of creating job opportunities to broaden the tax base for people to pay for services. We want to focus on local activities. We need to make municipalities to be economically viable," he said.

The global economic crisis has had adverse effects to Local Economic Development. National COGTA's Ms Pumla Ndaba attested to this. She said the LED is facing an increasingly volatile global economic trajectory due to the debt crisis in Europe. "The global economic crisis leads to lower tax collections, increases expenditure through borrowing in order to alleviate the effects of the crisis," Ms Ndaba said.

She added that despite this, government has committed itself to the job creation programme and that the revitalization of LEDs will contribute to the interventions to propel the job creation programme. She said that 190 000 new jobs have been created during the second quarter of 2011, giving hope that the figures may still increase with the implementation of the LED resolutions. She added that by revitalizing the LED, short term job creation programmes such as the Community Works' Programmes (CWP) can be boosted.

Spatial Development Frameworks and Land Use Management are the cornerstones of the LED and so is the review of LED Strategies that have to be aligned with Integrated Development Plans (IDPs). Cogta is working tirelessly to establish Local Economic Forums in all the municipalities in the province.

The forums will be followed by job summits in all municipalities. Important stakeholders for the forums are the Executive Mayors, community organizations and private sector located within the jurisdiction of the municipalities.

CONSENSUS: Delegates map the way forward for the stimulation of the local economy during the LED Summit in Hazyview.

COGTA INTERVENES TO THE PLIGHT OF FLOOD VICTIMS

FOOD SUPPLY: Private companies donated food for flood victims. Here, COGTA's officials prepare them for distribution.

The Department of Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs (COGTA) joined forces with various departments and municipalities to support the victims of the recent floods. Several houses were severely damaged when a heavy rain hit parts of the Mpumalanga in Ehlanzeni District, leaving a number of families without shelter. As the co-ordinator of the Joint Operation Committee (JOC) responsible for disaster management, COGTA facilitated meetings to make an assessment of the damage and to map out an intervention strategy for affected families and the infrastructure. The meetings, which took at Ehlanzeni Council Chamber, were attended by Premier David Mabuza, several MECs including Mr Madala Masuku of COGTA, Executive Mayors and senior government and municipal officials.

Families were provided with food parcels, blankets and tents. Only six casualties were reported due to the floods. Massive damage was also caused to roads, bridges, schools, water purification plants and farms. In the Bushbuckridge Municipality, Acting Municipal Manager, Mr Ernest Moukangwe said 21 bridges were inaccessible.

"The bridges were covered by water, making it dangerous for people to cross, he told the JOC meeting.

In the Mbombela Municipality, the Executive Mayor, Cllr Cathrine Dlamini said five bridges had collapsed. The water supply in the Nkomazi Municipality was cut off for several villages, as water pumps were submerged.

Affected villages were Masibekela, Sibange, Ntunda, Mangweni and Naas. COGTA, Nkomazi Municipality and the Department of Water Affairs dispatched water tankers to supply water to the affected villages as a temporary measure. Similar forms of damages were reported in Thaba Chweu and Umjindi Municipalities.

Head of Department, Mr David Mahlobo appealed for more support to the families. "As the water subsided, we need to fix the water pumps urgently so that the delivery of water can be restored. We need to support municipalities, by strengthening their capacity for service delivery," Mr Mahlobo said.

The floods coincided with the opening of schools. In some areas, pupils had to be airlifted by choppers, provided by the South African National Defence Force (SANDF), as the level of water increased to cover bridges. 112 schools were reportedly damaged and the Department of Education required about R260 million to fix them. Temporary classrooms were provided to badly-damaged schools.

The Agricultural sector was also affected. A number of farms were left with no water as their water pumps were submerged. Premier Mabuza visited several villages and service delivery points to determine the extent of the damage.

RESCUE MISSION: MEC Masuku addresses the media at the end of a Joint Operation Committee meeting at Ehlanzeni District. He is flanked by MEC Candith Mashego-Dlamini, Ehlanzeni District Mayor, Cllr Letta Shongwe and Nkomazi Mayor, Cllr Thulisile Khoza.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE IKOSI JOHANNES MAHLANGU

The late Ikosi Johannes Mahlangu

The institution of traditional leadership and the community of the Nkangala District paid their last respect to the late Ikosi Ncengwane Johannes Mahlangu famously known as Ikosi Fene. Born on 7 July 1928 at Weltevrede, Ikosi Fene was a senior Traditional Leader of the Ndzundza-Fene clan at Thembaletu. He passed away at the age of 83 on the 5th of October 2011.

A memorial service was held in his honour on the 8th October 2011. The service was attended by his friends, Emakhosi, political leaders, prominent public figures, community organizations representatives, senior public officials and the Thembaletu community. His friends especially those that stayed with him in the 70s in Soweto described him as an open and a very good man who liked to practice his culture.

They indicated that while staying outside the KwaNdebele area, Ikosi Fene practiced his culture religiously.

They recalled that while staying in Soweto, he united the Ndebele people and was able to call two initiation/ Ingoma practice sessions. He was described as a person who had a passion for the Ndebele people and was able to gather them in the areas of Soweto during the time of the apartheid regime.

His role in politics was highlighted by those who knew him well. He worked closely with political activists and used his own house to shield them against the apartheid regime. He formed part of a delegation that travelled to Lusaka to hold talks with the ANC, when it was still banned by the previous apartheid regime.

Ikosi Fene's love and care for his people was most central at the memorial service. He was described as a leader who was always open and available to his people. He worked closely with many organizations in his area, such as the youth, religious and political formations, the taxi industry, moral regeneration and government institutions. He was also described as a person who always encouraged good relations between the municipalities and the institution of traditional leadership.

Ikosi Fene will be remembered for his instrumental role in the Ndzundza-Mabhoko Kingship's battle for recognition. His passion for cultural activities and support for all Emakhosi in Mpumalanga, was captured in the speech of the Chairperson of the Mpumalanga Provincial House of Traditional Leaders (MPHTL), Ikosi Siphoh Mahlangu during his funeral service. "He was a very dedicated member of the traditional house of traditional leaders. He used to travel to all traditional councils in Mpumalanga to attend their cultural events. His traditional gear, the Ndebele traditional attire, was his trademark, which he was recognized with, when attending cultural and government events," Ikosi Mahlangu related. He was hailed as an institutional memory of the Ndebele history.

At the time of his death, Ikosi Fene was still an active member of the MPHTL. His membership to the MPHTL started on the 12th of April 1995, the day he was elected. He also served in the following committees;

- Traditional Leadership Claims and Disputes Committee.
- Traditions, Customs and Culture Committee.
- Adhoc Committee of Elders.

May his soul rest in peace!

NEWLY INAUGURATED MATSAMO CHIEF COMMITTS HIMSELF TO IMPROVE THE LIVES OF HIS PEOPLE

ORATION: Inkosi Mduduzi Shongwe of the Matsamo Traditional Council delivers his inaugural speech.

The Matsamo community has inaugurated Inkosi Mduduzi Shongwe as the Chief of the Traditional Council. The inauguration, which took place in Schoemansdal outside Malelane, was attended by Emakhosi from different Traditional Councils and leaders of various spheres of government to show support for him. The Department of Co-operative Governance and Traditional Affairs (COGTA) presented Inkosi Shongwe with a certificate of recognition to express government's support for his chieftaincy.

Chairperson of House Traditional Leaders (HTL) in Mpumalanga, Ikosi Sipho Mahlangu congratulated Inkosi Shongwe for being inaugurated as Chief of the Matsamo Traditional Council. Mahlangu said traditional leaders play an important role in society as they are a direct link between their people and government. "As traditional leaders, we must serve as agents of development for our communities and we must play an active role in the affairs of our communities to ensure that our people have access to services rendered by government and to also improve their living conditions," he told the audience.

He further urged Inkosi Shongwe to continuously engage with his community so that he can know the needs and aspirations of his people to better serve them.

MEC for Education, Ms Regina Mhaule, who delivered a key note address on behalf of MEC Madala Masuku congratulated the newly inaugurated chief and advised him to work hard for his community.

She said government is committed to support traditional leaders and continues to work together with them to make a better life for all people in the province. "We are happy that many traditional leaders have come to show support for Inkosi Shongwe and we urge them not to rest on their laurels but to roll up their sleeves and work towards improving their communities," MEC Mhaule said.

Inkosi Shongwe committed himself to serve the Matsamo community to the best of his ability and urged members of the community to work together with him adding that new ideas to improve the lives of the people will be welcomed. He thanked leaders of government and fellow traditional leaders for supporting him. "I am looking forward to interact with my fellow traditional leaders and leaders of government so that we can advance the cause of creating new opportunities for all our people. We commit ourselves to work together with all levels of government," Inkosi Shongwe said.
